One night Nancy happened to see a shooting star fly across the sky. She heard, "If you say a wish aloud three times while watching a shooting star, your wish will *<sup>1</sup>come true." She wanted to see another shooting star, so she waited for a long time but couldn't find one. She felt a little sad.

In fact, shooting stars can be seen two or three times an hour every night. But it is very difficult to see shooting stars when you are looking for them. So, most people stop looking for them. That's why people say they bring good luck.

There are, *<sup>2</sup>however, several special days each year. August 12th and 13th are the best time. On these nights, you can see more shooting stars than usual. If the night sky has no moon and no clouds, you can often count more than 50 an hour.

- a. One night,  $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{① Nancy saw a shooting star.} \\ \text{② Nancy flew across the sky.} \\ \text{③ Nancy went shooting.} \end{array} \right.$

- b. Nancy wanted to see another shooting star $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{① to remember the night.} \\ \text{② to say her wish aloud.} \\ \text{③ to count them.} \end{array} \right.$

c. Nancy felt a little sad because she couldn't

- ① remember her wish.
- ② wait for a long time.
- ③ see another shooting star.

d. People say shooting stars bring good luck because they are

- ① easy to get.
- ② hard to see.
- ③ impossible to find.

e. On August 12th and 13th, we can more easily

- ① look up at the clear sky.
- ② see shooting stars.
- ③ watch the moon.
