18 Question a. Woman : Excuse me. Could I move to a different table?
Man : Is there a problem, madam?
Woman : Well, I don't like the smoke coming from those customers.
Man : All right, a new table will be ready for you in a minute.
Question : Where are these people having this conversation?

19 Question b. Man : Do you know what your blood type is?
Woman : I'm not really sure. Why?
Man : You should know it in case of injury or something.
Woman : I know it's important. But in America, we have a family doctor who takes care of that.
Question : Why doesn't the woman know what her blood type is?

20 Question c. Woman : You look very tired today. You must have studied hard last night.
Man : Actually, I watched TV until late.
Woman : Oh, no. We have a history test today. Didn't you know that?
Man : Well, the TV show was about Roman history and today's exam is about that.
Question : Why did the man watch TV last night?

21 Question d. Man : Look at this. I've got a ticket for the big concert on Saturday.
Woman : Wow, I kept calling the ticket office, but the line was always busy.
Man : I got it through the Internet.
Woman : Oh, I should have done that. Why didn't you tell me?
Question : What did the woman want the man to do?

22 Question e. Man : I happened to meet an old friend of mine from junior high school today.
Woman : You haven't seen him for a long time?
Man : No, not for more than ten years.
Woman : How was he?
Question : How did the man meet his old friend today?

それでは英文を読みます。

25/26

J.K. Rowling was born in England in 1965. In 1995, she was a single mother living in Scotland, relying on government benefits to feed herself and her young daughter. At that time, she was writing a book based on an idea she had had five years earlier in 1990 while sitting on a train. Most of the writing was done in coffee shops, simply because it was easier for her to get her baby to sleep when they were out of the small apartment they were living in. While her daughter was sleeping, J.K. Rowling was able to write.

The book was finished in 1995. The title was Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone. The book was sent to 12 publishing companies, but they all said, "No." J.K. Rowling never stopped trying. Finally, in 1996 a company called Bloomsbury said, "Yes." In total, the books she wrote have now sold more than 450 million copies worldwide.

Jane : Hi, Takashi. You've lost so much weight!

Takashi : Yeah, I feel so much better.

Jane : How did you do it? I've tried eating less and joining gyms, but nothing works for me.

Takashi : I've simply been avoiding eating rice at night. I eat lots of meat and vegetables instead.

Jane : You don't run?

Takashi : Never.

Jane : You must be lying. Please tell me your secret.

Takashi : I'm telling you the truth. I learned the method from my friend. He told me that his father, a doctor, lost weight by simply not eating rice or bread with dinner.

Jane : Really? How can that work?

Takashi : Well, rice and bread become sugar in your stomach and most of us don't need much sugar at night. All we do in the evening is watch TV, study, and then go to bed. And if we don't use up the sugar, it becomes fat.

Jane : I understand what you're saying, but I'd be really hungry if I didn't eat any rice.

Takashi : Don't worry about it. You can eat something other than rice or bread.

Jane : All right, that sounds good. I'll start from tonight.

次に問いの文を読みます。

3036 Question a. What did Jane first notice about Takashi?

3137 Question b. What had Jane done to try to lose weight?

3238 Question c. Why did Jane think Takashi was lying?

3339 Question d. How did Takashi lose weight?

3440 Question e. Why does Takashi's method work?

Meg : Hi, Mike. Have you heard that a new student will be joining our class?

Mike : No, I haven't. How do you know that?

Meg : Our math teacher, Mr. Smith, told me that she arrived in town last week. She'll come to our school on September 15th.

Mike : Oh, that's tomorrow, isn't it?

Meg : Yes, so I'm planning to have a welcome party after school tomorrow.

Mike : That's a good idea. I'll help you.

Meg : Thank you, Mike. I'm thinking of having it at a small restaurant I know.

Mike : I suggest going to the Café Rome. It's quite a nice restaurant. They serve delicious Italian food.

Meg : I had the same idea, but I've changed my mind now. The new student is actually from Italy. She might prefer to try something new.

Mike : I see. By the way, what is her name?
