In Korea, people started eating salted vegetables called kimchee in the 7th century. However, this was not the same kimchee that is sold in Japan now. In those days, all salted vegetables were called kimchee. To eat them during winter time, people kept them salted.

In the 12th century, various *¹spices came to Korea and people used them in kimchee. In the 16th century, red pepper was introduced into the country by Japanese soldiers and it was used in kimchee. In the 19th century, *²Chinese cabbage became common in the area and the kind of kimchee we eat now became popular all across the country.

Kimchee is now very popular in many countries. But if red pepper had not been introduced into Korea or if Chinese cabbage had not become so common, we couldn't eat the kimchee we eat now.

We can say that kimchee developed in Korea by accident. People in Korea liked to eat salted vegetables and seafood. *³Portugal, where people grew and used a lot of red peppers for cooking, had a *⁴relationship with Japan and Japanese soldiers brought them into Korea. We think of kimchee as a very old Korean food. However, the kind that is now popular in Japan was first eaten in the 19th century.

*¹spice : 香辛料 *²Chinese cabbage : 白菜 *³Portugal : ポルトガル

*⁴relationship : 関係

As he walked out of the Louvre Museum in Paris, France, he looked like an average repairman. However, he was carrying something that was very (a). Under his jacket, Vincenzo Perugia had the Mona Lisa, one of the most famous paintings in the world. He was stealing it.

It sounds *¹incredible, but it's a true story. On August 20, 1911, Perugia went into the museum and (b) himself. He waited for 15 hours until the next morning. On the day of the *²crime, the museum was closed for repairs. Perugia walked out of the museum wearing the same kinds of clothes as the repairmen. No one paid (c) to him as he walked out of the door.

The police searched for the Mona Lisa all over the world. They even interviewed Perugia, but they let him go. They kept looking with no success. Perugia waited for two years before he brought the painting to a man in Florence, Italy, who dealt in art. Florence is the city where Leonardo da Vinci painted the Mona Lisa. (d) for Perugia, the art dealer called the police and he was *³arrested.

Perugia said he wanted to return the Mona Lisa to its "real" home in Italy. The police believed he wanted to sell copies of the painting and keep the (e) one for himself. Nobody really knows his real purpose.

*¹incredible : 信じられない *²crime : 犯罪 *³arrest : 逮捕する
